There was a fast market adjustment of -1.7% applied to the month end NAV based on the futures market at the valuation point.

TOPIX fell by 0.5% in local terms. This small change belies the dramatic moves of both the index and the yen during July which have continued into August. TOPIX surpassed its 1989 high hitting 2,929 on 11th July. The currency initially remained weak, reaching ¥161/$ at one point, a 38 year low, despite intervention by the authorities. Sentiment then turned, possibly because speculative short yen positions were the second largest since the record set in 2007. The currency began to appreciate and ended the month at ¥150.5.

The Bank of Japan surprised most economists by raising interest rates from a range of 0-0.1% to 0.25%, which only 26% of forecasters were anticipating. It also outlined plans to halve the purchase of JGBs from ¥6trn a month to under ¥3trn by April 2026. It believes the risks to inflation over the next two years are to the upside, but it emphasised flexibility in policy to deal with events as they unfold.

Japan's unemployment rate (seasonally adjusted) fell slightly to 2.5% in June, while the job openings-to-applicants ratio was 1.23x. The Japanese government agreed to hike the minimum average hourly pay by 5% to ¥1,054, the largest annual rise on record.

Although it is early days, the tone of the first quarter results announcements has been generally positive. Electrical engineering company Kandenko announced a strong first quarter with profits up 53% year on year on the back of increased renovation work. Canon Marketing Japan, which reported second quarter results, revised up full-year sales forecasts on the back of stronger revenue from its higher margin IT business, which is now almost 50% of total sales. It also announced a huge share buyback, 17% of shares outstanding, the majority of which is being purchased from its parent company Canon. Canon Marketing will remain a subsidiary of Canon for now, but the decline in the number of parent-subsidiary listings continues; the Nikkei reported that the total fell to 190 as at March 2024, down 10% on the previous year and half of the peak level in 2007.

The unwinding of cross-shareholdings continues apace. There was a placing of 5.7% of Honda shares sold by the non-life companies and several banks. Toyota Motor announced it will buy back ¥800bn ($5.2bn) of its stock from major Japanese banks and insurers through a tender offer at a discount. Toyota and Denso also announced that they will reduce their holdings in another group company, Aisin. According to TSE data, companies excluding financial institutions sold ¥2.6trn ($16.6bn) of shares in the first half of the year, up 53% from the same period last year.

Elsewhere, Honda, Nissan and Mitsubishi announced a planned strategic partnership. Tohokushinsha, a film and TV distribution company, received a bid from an activist to take the firm private.

The valuation of our portfolio remains attractive at a time when interest rates are starting to normalise. Our cash rich companies are continuing to improve their returns to shareholders and increase their ROE.
